The Annual Pilgrimage to in honour of St Ninian will take place on Sunday 25th August with Mass at Whithorn at 3.00 p.m.

St. Ninian is a shadowy figure in history. He is acknowledged as Scotland's first saint with the date 397AD celebrated as the beginning of his mission to his people.

There is very little that we know about him. No written references to St Ninian from the period he was alive have been found. We can only refer to works written many years after his death. Historians now read these texts carefully trying to separate the truth from tradition and embroidery from fact.

Whithorn's history as an Early Christian centre cannot be doubted. Archaeologists have uncovered clues from the earliest settlement in the 5th century. The people were trading and importing luxury goods from the Mediterranean and were working the land to produce food together. The Latinus Stone, which is the earliest Christian monument in Scotland shows that the community was Christian. Historically we do know that from the 7th century people have made a pilgrimage to visit the shrine of St Ninian in Whithorn believing in his power to cure illness and perform miracles. The town became a cult centre and over many centuries both kings and commoners made the journey and the fame of Ninian and Whithorn spread.

In the 7th century Whithorn came under the control of the Northumbrian church. In AD731 Bede, a famous historian completed his book "History of the English Church and People". In this book he said that Ninian was 'a most reverend bishop and holy man of the nation of Britons' who had been trained in Rome. The Episcopal see was named after St Martin and his church was known as Candida Casa because it was built from stone in a way unknown to the Britons. At this time there were arguments between the Celtic Church and the Roman Church. The Northumbrian church supported the Roman Church and Bede made much of Ninian receiving training in Rome. The complex of buildings revealed from this time was able to

The National Pilgrimage to Carfin will be held on Sunday 8th September. The pilgrimage is in honour of St Columba who arrived in Iona 1450 years ago. It is also the main celebration of the Scottish Church Year of Faith. The Principal celebrant is Archbishop Tartaglia and Bishop Joseph Toal will preach the homily. The Mass this year will be celebrated around the altar erected near the statue of Blessed

John Paul II whose canonisation we eagerly anticipate, and will be followed by Benediction some 30 minutes after Mass

The school session starts this week. Pupils returning to school on Tuesday. A warm welcome to the new members of staff and those children who will start school for the first time.

The school plays an important role in the life of any parish community and we all look forward to working with Mrs Gallacher and her staff to continue the close links already formed.

Our secondary school for this parish is St John's High and we also look forward to working with Mrs McLagan and her staff in the year ahead.

Best wishes to all
