REFLECTION FOR SIXTH SUNDAY OF THE YEAR

This Sunday's Gospel is from Matthew and we hear Jesus saying very strongly that we should keep the commandments, be virtuous and let our yes be yes and your no be no.

It sounds easy, but for many of us, simply giving honest answers to questions is a challenge - sometimes we think it's nicer to be unclear or we aren't very responsible for our promises. However, honest answers, and keeping our word - even when we don't always feel like doing it - this helps to build trust and confidence in one another.

Let your yes be yes, and your no be no. Let us take seriously the person before us who asks for an answer, take them seriously enough to give them an honest answer. Let us be honest people, honest with God and with one another.

Catholic Education Week 12th to 19th February 2017

THEME: "Developing as a community of faith and learning" "What makes the Catholic school distinctive is its attempt to generate a community climate that is permeated by the Gospel Values"

The theme for CATHOLIC EDUCATION WEEK is designed to give us the chance to consider how our schools are "Developing as communities of Faith and Learning".

We can list many things that make a Catholic school distinctive:

- + Catholic schools have Jesus Christ at the centre of all that they do,
+ Learning is shaped using Gospel values,*
- + Prayer, worship and religious celebrations are integral to the life of the school*
- + Catholic schools promote social justice and serve their communities*
- + Their vision, aims and values, to educate the whole person- body, mind and soul, are developed in partnership with parents and parishes and offers a vision*

Our Catholic schools are communities where Jesus is the 'driving force' behind the school's planning and actions. Pope Francis has said that "you cannot speak of Catholic education without speaking about humanity, because the Catholic identity is precisely that God became man". Catholic schools in Scotland are inclusive communities which welcome, value, affirm and support all pupils, parents and staff to fulfil the potential of their God-given talents.

So, what does this mean for us in the parish of St Peter and St Paul? First and foremost we remember that while we are all unique, we were made to be in communion with others. We were created to be in a loving relationship with God, our family and our world. In this parish [and in our schools] we learn that each of us, as a child of God, is part of the global Church family and that we cannot reach our full potential on our own.

Our schools work together with our parishes to give our children the best opportunities possible to grow in love of God and with each other. Here are some of the examples of the ways in which our schools and parishes work together as a community of faith and learning:
